Albee's Success in Portland Generally Credited to City's New Voters.

women's vote is large enough t change any party. Furthermore, there is just as plain a division of political faith the feminine ranks as in the ranks of PROGRESSIVES FEAR the men. Consequently strategy rather than good fellowship bribery has become the political tool in city politics.

Change About on Suffrage.

Not the least interesting feature of the city election last April was the bid for women's votes by men who had been out-spoken enemies of woman suffrage or who had been only lukewarm adherents of the

Before the equal suffrage amendment was adopted in Oregon there were about 42,000 registered oters in Portland. Since then the registration has been swelled to about 70,000, and of the 70,000 at the last city election, when officers inder the new charter were chosen, about 50,000 went to the polls.

The old administration, which was Republican and Democratic mixed, was completely routed. A man who in the na-tional campaign was a Roosevelt Pro-gressive ran on the Progressive ticket in the city election. He was elected in the city election. He was elected Mayor by a heavy plurality.

Besides the Mayor, five commissioners were chosen, the new charter being a commission form draft, the adoption of which was generally attributed to the vote of the women. The members of the commission are of mixed political faith, two being Democrats, two Republicans and one a non-partisan thinker with Progressive leanings.

Indood tide it reached during the last State campaign.

District leaders disappointed in the disposition of political patronage have quietly dropped out, and many of the lukewarm supporters who were urged on by the oratory of Gov. Hiram Johnson have also returned to the Republican party and declare that they are ready to stand with the rank and file of the older organization.

Labor services will be held to-morrow at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Cardinal Farley will preside. and recommended by the mother of equal Scott, editor of the Oregonian, who for many years opposed equal suffrage. #### Women Make Influence Felt.

Before the new administration was elected the women made their influence felt with the old council and Mayor. By regular visits to the City Council meetings and to committee meetings the wom-en succeeded in having George L. Baker. president of the council, issue an edict that the members would not be allowed to smoke during council sessions; further, ferred men to retain their original rights and privileges. One club woman, how-ever, Mrs. A. E. Clarke, publicly denounced the councilmen as no gentlemen if thy smoked when women were present, if thy smoked when women were present. Gov. Johnson denies that he will quit, and President Baker allowed his edict to but admits that his present physical conbeen the agitaiors.

For some weeks Portland has been in the throes of an Industrial Workers of the World disturbance. The I. W. W. agitators began to flock to the city when a strike opened at a packing plant in which girls and women were employed. The women, led by one or two men, paraded about the factory and were vigilant pickets. Street speaking became riotous, and during one raid of the downtown streets the women were the leading. town streets the women were the leading factors with which the police had to con-

One of the principal leaders was Dr. One of the principal leaders was Dr. i Marie Equi, a woman who was active in the suffrage fight and who has had con-siderable influence with the residents of the working class section of the city. She comes from southern Europe and speaks various languages. She has been instrumental in getting the women of the slums and poorer sections of the city out to the polls.

on the charge was stabbing a policeman with a hatpin, which she had said previously she would dip with a virus made by herself, designed to bring on slow death.

The presence of the women in the voting lines this year caused several bachelor candidates to drop from the race when candidates to drop from the race when their personal records were put under the politics: X rays by the women's clubs. On the Portland school board a woman was elected. Her vote at one time sue-egeded in ousting a principal of one of the graded schools whose domestic life had been interwoven with a divorce proceeding. By firmly holding out for days she won over one vote—the deciding one.

office of councilman under the old charter. They were defeated by tremendous votes. Throughout the State there have been numerous women to enter the race for office, several for Mayor, and in almost every instance they have been defeated. The suffrage leaders say that is yet they are not ready or equipped to handle office.

There have sprung up, however, in-numerable civic study clubs. At the elections the women took up their duties at the election booths and stayed through the ordeal of counting. This lasted for days in some of the precincts. Gov. West of Oregon has appointed a woman his private secretary. His former secretary was made Commissioner of Cor-porations.

At the Jackson Club banquet Mrs. M. L. T. Hidden and several others have spoken. A woman has been named on the Oregon Industrial Welfare Commission, which is investigating wages of women workers and the conditions under which they work. This commission has complete executive power, arbitrary when fixing wages for women workers.

The daughter of United States Senator Harry Lane of Oregon is Mrs. Nina Lane Finch-McBride. She is an ardent So-cialist of the radical school and has been working among the lower classes in the interest of politics, but not in the interest so completely into the political order of of her father. There appear as many women support-ing the open town as are against it; there are as many women who could be called "standpatters" as there are "in-surgents." The Progressive element, however, is getting in its effective work just now. The women have said openly that they realize the necessity or perhaps the advantages of a political machine and they are constructing rapidly parts and assembling them.

LEAKS IN AQUEDUCT TUNNEI Water Already in Storm King Tube

Under Hudson. Newsurgh, Aug. 30.—The tunnel under the Hudson River, between Cornwall and Storm King is completed at a depth of 1,2*0 feet for the passage of the water from the Ashokan Dam to New York city, but it has been discovered that there are many leaks, and there is considerable water coming into the tube. The contractors, Gillespie & Co. of New York, it is said have instructed their engineers to investigate the advisability of flushing the entire tunnel with a strong current of water and keeping the water there so that the pressure of the water on the inside may counteract that of the weight of the river bottom above and tighten the joints or loose fittings. Supt. William Wright at Storm King says there crat and one a Progressive, ran for the is not the slightest danger of a cavein.
